2017 The delicacy of older vines is on full display in this 2017 VINTAGE Harrison Hill, with subtle earthy aromas of leather and sandalwood, and savory herbal notes of tarragon and cinnamon stick. The wine is bright and dynamic on the palate, with a sophisticated core of fleeting dark berry flavors and exotic spices (green tea, cumin and fennel seed). Restrained in style, and with a promising structure that has earned a well-deserved reputation for rewarding aging, this vintage is nonetheless very compelling and cerebral in its youth.

WINE & SPIRITS

OCTOBER 2020

“From an old-vine north-facing site on Snipes Mountain, in the heart of the Yakima Valley, this blend of mostly cabernet and merlot is grainy and herbaceous when first poured, lighter than many cab-based blends from Washington. The fruit is limpid and pure, weightless, lasting with a clarity of line and starburst acidity for days.”
